America Takes It Easier

The philosophy of an America-at-War in 1942 was never better expressed than by this brief essay from William Feather, editor of the Imperial Type Metal Magazine:

Somervell Says Can Supply Big Scale Front

London —(AP)— Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell general commanding the U. S. Army service of supply asserted Thursday that the United States stands ready to supply men and material on a large scale to an European battlefront despite large commitments in Australia and India.

He said these movements of men and supplies could be accomplished despite shipping shortage and added that one of his main tasks in Britain would be to carry out standardization of British and American fighting equipment to the limit.

General Somervell, here with other high officers of the U. S. Army and Navy said American troops likely would be using British equipment on "some scale" both in the air and on the ground.

Replied to questions about American production he said it will reach a peak this fall.

"The whole program is ahead of schedule particularly tanks," he said.

Scrap Metal Drive Begun

The threat to our war production program arising from shortages of scrap metals for the steel mills is critical, thereby demanding the patriotic vigilance of everyone.

The War Production Board is asking the the Hempstead county increase the flow of scrap, so the Hempstead County Salvage Committee met on Wednesday afternoon, May 26, and made plans for a sustained drive throughout the county, inviting the services of the churches, chambers of commerce, public schools, city and county officials, boy scouts, all civic clubs, professional men, business men and newspapers.

The organizations presently collecting scrap are asked to increase their efforts and new organizations such as the Boy Scouts, various church organizations, home demonstration clubs, and the like are expected to get into the work in the very near future so as to get this program in operation as is expected of this county.

The government is anxious that fair prices be paid for scrap, but is more insistent that the scrap be put into channels of production immediately. It is the duty of this organization to see that all scrap available be put on this market as rapidly as possible from the few pounds around each household to the large scrap pile about the old mill site, so everyone is urged to immediately move their scrap with the least possible delay.

Today, in our great industrial plants, armies of steel workmen are working 24 hours a day using the finest tools and most modern equipment to keep our armed forces with weapons with which to successfully combat aggression. It is a patriotic duty of everyone behind the line to see that these industries are kept in continuous operation.

McCaskill Boy in Air Corps

Jefferson Barracks, Mo., May 23, (AP)—Private H. M. Rhodes, who enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Corps on May 6, at Camp Joseph T. Robinson, Ark., has arrived at Jefferson Barracks where he was assigned to "C" 355th Tech. School Sdkn. (SP.)

Private Rhodes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rhodes of McCaskill, Ark. In private life Private Rhodes was employed as a State certified plant grower and shipper. He attended McCaskill High School. His past activities include Basic Military training.

Queer Race

An annual sports event in Calcutta, India, is known as the Noah's Ark race. The competitors generally are a goat, a horse, and an elephant.

"Perhaps it is not true patriotism to make a pleasure of necessity, but it is a fact that there is no hardship in doing most of the things we have so far been asked to do, as civilians and householders, in this war.

"Most of us have long prayed that the time would come when it would cease to be fashionable to keep up with the Joneses. We have wanted to reduce our standard of living because its maintenance took so much of our time and energy that we could not enjoy our so-called blessings.

"We resented the idea of trading in houses, automobiles, and household utilities, at heavily depreciated prices, when they were nearly as good as new. We couldn't understand why styles in clothing and furniture changed as often as the film at the neighborhood movie.

"We couldn't reconcile ourselves to the habits and attitudes of the younger generation, but to make a stand against the trend was a lonely, if not impossible, job.

"Now suddenly taxes make thrift imperative and the purchase of war bonds makes super-thrift compulsory.

"For two decades we have told ourselves that we should walk more, find our recreation in inexpensive games, and seek in the quiet of our homes a source of family unity and uplift.

"The American way of life was not all good. We are quickly discarding the undesirable features. The new order is likely to produce gains in national character of which we are now only dimly aware."

Confusion Worse
Confounded

Washington is a very, very busy city. Everybody there, with unimportant exceptions, is working hard and day to put over the most gigantic war program ever conceived. Officials, like their subordinates, are harried and weary. It is understandable that at times they should become careless or temperamental or both.

Conceding this, and all that it implies, nevertheless we must reiterate and emphasize that Washington's public relations are deteriorating so rapidly as to constitute a menace to public morale.

The last time this was pointed out, using the gasoline rationing tagline as illustration, President Roosevelt blamed the press. He said the correspondents' two-to-five gallon a week ration was a guess—intelligent, perhaps, but nevertheless a guess. The fact was that the press came from a source in the Office of Price Administration which proved to be accurate. The ration started at three gallons.

Harold Ickes and Leon Henderson, with their statement that rationing would be less rigorous than predicted in news stories, were made to look more than a little foolish. So was the President, with his attempt to blame the press.

This now is history. It should not be revived but for the more recent and more harmful flurry over optimism about military operations. The Army and Navy joined in a statement which started the better-informed observers with its cheerfulness. The secretary of state said that the war might be over sooner than we expected, without saying whose expectations he had in mind, or how pessimistic they had been.

These things were timed, presumably by accident, to coincide with reports of correspondents released from internment in Germany and Italy, who told about the internal difficulties confronting Hitler and Mussolini.

Then "a high official," Secretary Hull and finally the President had to dash cold water on the public, so that they wouldn't consider the war already won.

One who follows these situations closely can not escape feeling that the self-contradiction in the government's news "policy" arises from confusion of goals.

Everybody, from the President down, is anxious to keep us at fever heat in the production, financing, recruiting, fighting programs. Therefore we must not become too

Red Army Holds Initiative on All War Fronts

Moscow —(AP)— German troops are being forced to give ground in both the Izyum-Barvenkova and Kharkov sectors, the Russians declared Thursday indicating that the initiative on both the major battlefronts of the Ukraine was firmly in the hands of the Red army.

Front line dispatches said that the Germans, blocked in their offensive in the Izyum-Barvenkova area, were trying to dig in on new defense lines but constant pressure from the counter attacking Russians was forcing them to fall back.

From their own freshly fortified lines before Kharkov the Russians said they were pushing forward.

The Red army battled fiercely overnight against German tanks and infantry forces in both sectors and reported that before Kharkov one 3-day battle had burned or otherwise knocked out 46 German tanks.

Soviet information bureau announced 2,400 more Germans were slain in the repulse of the flanking attack in the southern theater and that 200 died in tanks newly burned or wrecked in the Kharkov battle.

Chinese Deny Fall of Kihwa

By the Associated Press
Chinese headquarters late Thursday denied an official Tokyo claim that Japanese troops climaxed a 200 mile advance in 10 days had captured the city of Kihwa, capital of the eastern seaboard province of Chekiang.

The Chinese spokesman announced that the city still was in Chinese hands after heavily reinforced Japanese attacks had been driven off. Heavy losses on both sides were acknowledged as the fighting raged around the wall of Kihwa, chief target of the Japanese sweep down the coast below Shanghai.

Even 10,000 Japanese reinforcements failed to subdue the Chinese defenders the Chinese dispatches said.

Chinese dispatches failed to confirm the Japanese claim. They said Chinese defenders were firmly entrenched on the outskirts of Kihwa and were holding at last reports but admitted the city was in grave danger.

A Japanese army spokesman said that more than 300,000 Chinese troops were concentrated in Chekiang theater and the fall of Kihwa meant military collapse.

Far across China in the southwest Chinese dispatches reported that Chinese troops had flung Japanese invasion columns into head long retreat and encircled them at Lungling, Burma road west of the Salween river after recapturing two towns to the south of Lungling.

Axis Drive in Libya 15 Miles From Tobruk

Cairo —(AP)— The sudden Axis offensive eastward in the Libyan desert has driven to within 15 miles of the key British defensive stronghold of Tobruk despite the repulse at both flanks, it was disclosed Thursday.

This indicated an advance of about 30 miles past the British forward defense line which stretched between Bir Hacheim and Ain el Gazala.

An RAF communique disclosed the depth of these thrusts by Marshal Erwin Rommel's German-Italian tanks.

It said the British flyers bombed the enemy armored forces throughout Wednesday in the El Adem and Bir Hacheim areas.

El Adem is 15 miles south of Tobruk. Bir Hacheim is 50 miles to the southwest.

An authoritative British statement was issued later stating that enemy presence in the El Adem area was not of great significance and did not mean a breakthrough since in the nature of desert fighting there is no defense line in the usual sense.

Earlier the British high command said that Axis attacks were in four main columns and that one was directed before Bir Hacheim and another south of Ain el Gazala which had been repulsed with heavy casualties.

Between these extremities two other Axis columns were being heavily engaged, the Army communique said.

The RAF announcement placed these forces even deeper than the army had intimated but said that all-day bombing wrecked transport vehicles.

Expects Air Attack on U. S.

Washington —(AP)— Secretary Stimson said Thursday the War Department considered a Japanese air raid on the United States to be inevitable as a retaliation blow for Brig. Gen. James Doolittle's attack on Tokyo and other Japanese cities.

The secretary told his press conference the army was doing everything possible to meet the expected attack was anticipated on the west coast.

"Whatever happens we shan't relax our most effective defense preparations for a major offensive," he also told questioners that despite the great distance the east coast lies from Japan an attack on the nation capital was not in conceivable.

He did not disclose the possibility of an attack by Japan's Axis partners.

"The loss of face Japan suffered from the army air attack led by General Doolittle made vengeance blows inevitable," he contended.

1917—ARRIVING "OVER THERE"—1942

Army's New 'Brain Corps'

By JACK STINNETT
Washington—In one of the temporary buildings on the upper reaches of the Mall, a new army corps is in the making.

It's the army civilian specialists corps. It's chief is Dwight F. Davis, formerly secretary of war and governor general of the Philippine Islands under Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

Although the "brain corps" is an infant organization and has had no more publicity than the announcement of the president's executive order establishing it, already applications are pouring across Davis' desk at the rate of one-thousand a day and the corps already has a long list of requirements from the army for men needed.

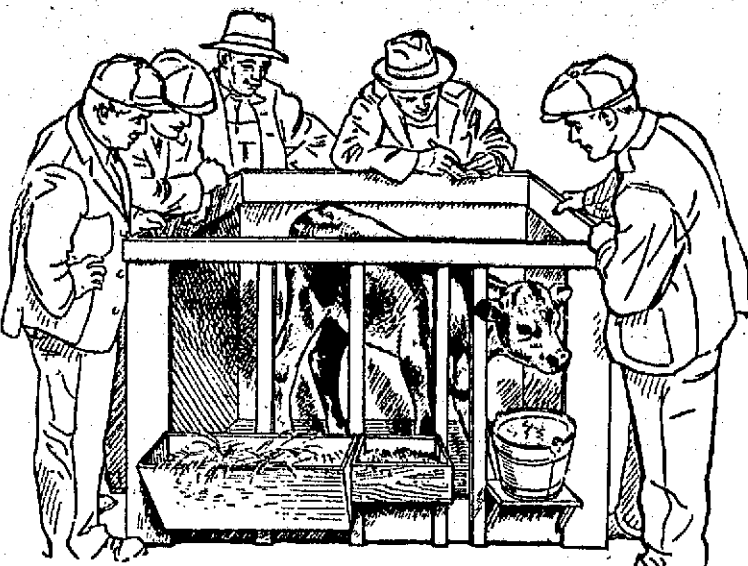

There has never been anything like it in the army before and its only precedent in the present war are the Nazi civilian tank and airplane specialists and Great Britain's civilian technical corps.

The officers and enlisted men of the corps will have uniforms similar to those of the army; will get paid at army or civil service levels. They will enlist for the duration or in some cases for specific jobs which might take only a few months.

The corps generally will take men over draft limits or men with physical deficiencies or other reasons for not being acceptable in the army or navy, but who have special training and abilities that the army needs. The corps is determined that it shall not become a way out for draft evaders but there seems to be little chance of that. Draft evaders and men of the accomplishments that the corps seeks don't belong in the same class.

Davis, in explaining the Corps, said: "A one-legged or one-eyed

Patriotic Calf 'Liberty Liz' Raised in Feeders Store

"What's that live calf doing in your store?" we asked Earl Allen, Manager of the Feeders Supply. "Why, I call her 'Liberty Liz' because she's here to show our local dairy farmers how they can save from 130 to 175 gallons of milk. You know, the government is asking each dairyman to ship at least 37½ extra gallons of milk per day in 1942, and here is an easy way to care for part of this additional quota."

Mr. Allen told us his calf was taken from its mother when five weeks old. Dry Calf Startena, black salt, hay and water were placed where the calf could get at them. When the calf was brought into the store, the milk part of her ration discontinued entirely. Earl Allen invites local folks to stop in at the Feeders Supply to see how "Liberty Liz" is thriving on her milk-saving ration.

A clinic for Crippled Children, under 21 years of age, will be held man, if he has the special talents required, will be enlisted or commissioned just as quickly as any one else. Brains, not physiques will be our test.

"Steinmetz couldn't have passed army physical requirements. We would commission such an expert almost immediately."

Some of the corps will serve overseas in the fighting line. Probably mostly technicians or inventors and war manufacturers who wish to observe first hand their products under actual battle conditions.

Aside from Davis and his staff, no appointments have been made yet but it will happen any day now. The first appointments may be experienced business men in each corps area to expedite the work of the corps area commanders in filling their "brain corps" requirements.

About the only man in the "brain corps" who won't have a commission or enlisted rating will be 61-year-old Dwight Davis. There probably will be few in it who have a better background entitling them to the regular army three stars of a lieutenant general than it was first rumored Davis would get. He went into the World War a captain of infantry; came out a lieutenant colonel; served for years as a colonel in reserves. He turned down the stars, believing he can best serve the corps as its civilian chief.

at the First Methodist church, June 18, 8:30 a. m.
Children from Hempstead, Clark and Nevada counties will be included in this clinic. Those eligible for care is any individual affected with a condition either congenital or acquired which prevents his normal physical life. This does not include impairments of speech, vision, hearing, mentality or teeth. Everyone is urged to cooperate, so that all cases may be taken care of. Anyone known of such a case should report it to the Nevada County Health office, so that application papers can be made out on the child before the clinic.

THE ENEMY STRIKES

CHAPTER XV

Talcott accepted the print and as he scanned it his bewilderment grew. The print was a copy of a newspaper and rather smudgy original. It was the head-and-shoulders of a man in uniform, a U. S. Marine officer, a group of natives and sailors. The crowd was growing in volume. People were running to it across the small park. Running men brushed past MacDowell.

Down there a woman screamed; the crowd bulged and parted momentarily and MacDowell saw a uniformed officer pushing them back from the launch that belonged to Federal Chemical Company's formed officer was in the launch, bending down. Well, maybe the cops could tell him something. Maybe they could tell him about the guy in the room that knew so much.

He had to run to keep up to Talcott. When they reached the crowd he saw that the people in it were scared. They were staring at the launch and the bent-down officer, jostling each other in their effort to see.

Beneath his tan, Talcott's face was white as milk. "What's wrong here?" he demanded so sharply that the officer looked up.

"This your boat?" the officer demanded.

illance burst from MacDowell's face. "Hey! That guy!" he gasped. "That guy is a —"

But Talcott was yards away, striding toward the waterfront. Briskly heading for a crowd gathered on the quay, a group of natives and sailors. The crowd was growing in volume. People were running to it across the small park. Running men brushed past MacDowell.

Down there a woman screamed; the crowd bulged and parted momentarily and MacDowell saw a uniformed officer pushing them back from the launch that belonged to Federal Chemical Company's formed officer was in the launch, bending down. "This your boat?" the officer demanded.

"I'm in charge of it." "Then you're the one we want, the Fort."

The officer stood up, and MacDowell, crowding close, saw Sebastian. Stretched out in the bottom, he was, his bandaged arm covering his face. Beneath the blade of his left shoulder was a glistening dark stain from which a knife-handle protruded.

Two Oversights Worth $.50 to Show

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP)—An oversight saved Merriweather Lewis, Jacksonville business man, a bit change during his day at the races at Tropical Park in Miami recently. He liked the looks of the No. 6 horse and decided to play $5 across the board. He didn't notice until the race started that he had been given a ticket on No. 7 instead. No. 7 didn't win, but did pay $.50 to show. No. 6 was out of the money. The name of No. 7 was "Oversight."

In 1859, the University of Toronto leased a large tract of land to the city on a 999-year term for the sum of five shillings annually.

Sara Ann Holland Is Feted at Luncheon Wednesday

As special compliment to her daughter, Miss Sara Ann Holland, fiancée of L. H. K. McFarland, Mrs. R. L. Gosnell entertained with a luncheon party at the Barlow Wednesday at 1 o'clock.

A miniature bride and groom on a white satin pedestal held the center of interest at the handsomely appointed circular table. To make a star-like effect, oblong containers filled with white sweetpeas, baby's breath, feverfew, cornflowers, and maiden hair fern extended from the central ornament. Five replicas of the bridesmaids alternated with the floral arrangements and were connected with white satin streamers.

The wedding motif was carried out in the crystal bells used as favors to mark places for the guests and in the bell-shaped minis served with the demitasse.

Each guest brought her favorite receipt, the group being presented to the honoree in a clever book.

A delectable 6-course luncheon was served the following: Miss Holland, Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr., Mrs. E. O. Wingfield, Mrs. Thomas Brewster, Mrs. Carter Johnson, Mrs. W. R. Anderson, Mrs. Leo Robins, Mrs. L. M. Lile, Mrs. T. L. McDonald of Ennis, Texas, Mrs. Remmel Young, Mrs. Robert LaGrone, Jr., Mrs. T. S. McDavitt, Mrs. Bill Wray, Mrs. Franklin Horton, and Mrs. Gosnell.

At the party Miss Holland wore a tulle dress of beige sheer. Her accessories were in a blending shade.

Coming and Going

Mrs. Leo Robins has gone to Conway to visit her daughter, Nancy Sue, at Arkansas State Teachers' College. They will return together this week-end.

Latin Quarter Packs 'Em in

By GEORGE TUCKER
New York—Patrons who wander into the Latin Quarter usually leave the place rubbing their eyes, as if they can't quite believe what they have seen.

I don't blame them. But if you are a little dazed, think how the five girls in that Apache number must feel. Maybe they are too numb to feel.

I'll explain by pointing out that the Latin Quarter is a night club.
It's where the old Cotton Club used to be. When you've got anything like a Latin Quarter, you can be sure you've got some Apache dancers.

That's what I'm getting to. There are seven in the act. Five girls, two men. The boys Apache is Frank Mazzone. The act lasts about 12 minutes, but while it does last you think the Eastern Front is being blitzed.

Apaches are those light-footed Don Juans from the gutters of Paris who beat their dolls twice a day, wrest their coin from them, and in turn are adored by the mistreated femmes.

This Apache act starts that way too. It grows into an acrobatic avalanche that sees the Apaches beating their blonde belles over the head, kicking their teeth out, climbing up stair ways and being shot to death in turn, and as they are shot their bodies topple off high platforms, crashing into wine racks, demolishing tables. I forgot to say that two of the dancers have chairs broken over their heads. The chairs fly into a thousand pieces.

Is this on the level? Almost 99 per cent of it is. True, the chairs and the table are pieces of trick furniture that will collapse under real pressure, but then consider this fact, Frank Mazzone has already lost 14 girls. They've been hurt, too badly hurt to continue work.

They've had arms broken, legs twisted, and slight concussions. He himself has been in the hospital.
He thinks no dance is worthwhile unless it has realism. One of the blondes in the act now is deaf and dumb, but not through the rigors of her profession. At the conclusion of the act the dancers are so exhausted and breathless they are barely able to drag themselves off stage. They can't even say thank you for the applause.

What I have described concerns only about 12 minutes of a full-scale revue in the best French manner.
Your old friend Emile Boreo and his Parade of the Wooden Soldiers is back. It's the Folies Bergeres an dthe old French Casino all over again. Which is all right. For me, in any case. There is a place in New York for a show of this timber.

No Government Free French

MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Washington—Should the United States break off relations with Pierre Laval's German-backed Vichy government (as many here think is inevitable), there is a very slender chance that Washington would recognize the Free French movement as a "government-in-exile."

General Charles de Gaulle's movement does not have that status now, and the distinction between his group and "governments-in-exile," such as those of Holland and Norway, is quite clear.

De Gaulle was not in government. It is simply that when these and other countries were overrun by the Nazis, their governments were going concerns. The heads of state and many officials succeeded in escaping. Most of them are in London and have been recognized as governments by both the United States and Great Britain.

The "Free French" movement is not a government-in-exile because General de Gaulle was not in the French government, and most of those who governed France when it fell are still there, even if not participating in the Laval set-up.

The American government has always recognized the Free French movement as one of a military nature, its adherents fighting on the side of the United Nations. But up to now, Adrien Tixier, chief of the Free French National Committee's delegation in the United States, has not hinted at any desire for recognition as a government in exile.

The fact that some parts of the far-flung French empire are under Vichy control and some under Free French has produced many a headache for our State Department. The United States continues to maintain relations with the French authorities—Free French or Vichy—actually in control. But, as a general principle, we have made it clear that we would assist French colonial possessions in resisting the Axis when they are under effective control of the Free French.

Vichy Didn't Like It
Vichy let out a diplomatic squawk when the United States appointed a Consul General to act at Brazzaville, Free French capital of Equatorial Africa. All Vichy got for its pains was a very decided snubbing from the U. S. State Department. But in this instance, as in all others, the American government carefully refrained from according actual diplomatic recognition to

Farmers Urged to Harvest All Legume Seed

In view of a price of at least 1½ cents a pound for shipped-in vetch seed this fall, and in view of the prospects for an even greater shortage of nitrogen fertilizers next year, Hempstead county farmers are strongly urged by Oliver L. Adams, county agent, to harvest all of the winter legume seed possible for both home use and for sale.

With the price of 10 cents a pound for clean hairy vetch seed guaranteed the Oregon producers and with freight and other costs amounting to 1½ cents a pound or more, it appears likely that clean hairy vetch seed will cost the Arkansas farmer at least 1½ cents a pound next fall. On the other hand, there is an increased need for growing nitrogen by planting winter legumes rather than buying it, because of the prospects for an even greater shortage of nitrogen fertilizers next year the agent said.

Farmers who harvest more vetch seed than they need for their own plantings are urged to have their seed cleaned and tested, in order to get full market value. Since Arkansas-grown seed are harvested about six weeks earlier than Oregon vetch, there should be a considerable demand for Arkansas seed by the seed trade where the seed are clean and are concentrated in large enough quantities for efficient and economical handling by the seedsmen. However, seedsmen cannot afford to pay market prices of clean seed for uncleaned and untested seed.

Farmers wanting information on harvesting and cleaning vetch, Austrian pea, white clover, bur clover, and hop clover are urged to get in touch with county agent Keith L. Adams.

Negroes Start Food Program

Much emphasis is being put on the food and feed program for home consumption in the Mt. Mariah, McCaskill and Blevins negro communities. In a series of evening class meetings for adults, the farmers have all agreed to grow more food and feed crops this year than ever before. In spite of the constant rainfall, we have a number of good gardens, with vegetables almost ready for canning.

Farmers are asked to apply to the local Rationing Board for their supply of sugar for canning purposes. Many farm women have gathered wild berries in their canning programs in previous years, but they are not gathering many berries and wild fruit now, because they are uncertain as to when the sugar may be obtained for canning.

The tomatoes and cucumber projects show much improvement over previous visits. But the farmers must keep in mind that in order to get reasonable yields from these projects, they must be treated against insects and diseases. For the best results in tomato production they should be pruned and staked.

This is our year for a record breaking broiler season. The farmers of the Mt. Mariah, Blevins, McCaskill and adjoining communities, have promised to grow plenty of yellow corn, peas, and small grain in preparation for this all out production of poultry and poultry products.

Indo-China has a population of 23,000,000.

the Free French movement. When the United Nations' victory is won and France is freed from the Nazi invaders, the program is for the French people, themselves, to choose their own form of government. The United States has no desire to impose upon them a de Gaulle political power.

County Men to Attend State Grading School

Earl Allen and D. E. Mobley of Hempstead county will attend a state-wide egg-grading school to be held by the Extension Service of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture in Little Rock, June 2, 3, and 4. Miss Mary Claude Fletcher and Oliver L. Adams, county extension agents, have announced.

Purpose of the school, according to the extension agents, is to train employees of egg dealers and others to grade eggs by official U. S. standards. Persons who complete the course successfully will be issued licenses to grade eggs by official government standards.

Instructors for the three-day school will include J. O. Kump, assistant extension economist in marketing; S. A. Moore, extension poultryman; and Frank J. Santo, associate marketing specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The school, which follows a series of area egg-grading schools held in the state, the agents explained, is a part of the Extension Service's Program to aid Arkansas farmers in disposal of surplus eggs produced in cooperation with the Food-for-Victory program. The lack of a state-wide egg-grading program, they said, has made it difficult for farmers to market surplus eggs since many important market outlets accept only graded eggs.

Because of the lack of an egg-grading system in the state, 16 cars containing 400 cases each of graded eggs were shipped into Arkansas in April, and approximately 12 cars in March. Although state farmers were finding it difficult to market the surplus eggs they had on hand, the agents said.

By training egg handlers to grade eggs by U. S. Standards and by assisting farmers in organizing local marketing programs, the Extension Service is setting up machinery that will enable farmers to find new market outlets for their eggs. The marketing machinery will also be used to dispose of other surplus products produced in cooperation with the Food-for-Victory campaign.

In connection with the egg-marketing school, a state-wide meeting of egg dealers will be held in Little Rock at the Pulaski county courthouse at 8 p. m., Wednesday evening, June 3. The dealers will meet with Extension officials to develop definite plans for putting Arkansas-produced federal-graded eggs on the market in Arkansas stores.

Other persons interested in attending the egg-grading school are urged by the extension agents to register at the county Extension office.
